Examine the following primary sources related to the incident depicted in the photograph and list any information that helps answer the class questions. Be sure to consider who, what, when, where, and why.

After his Boston public school desegregation decision, Judge Garrity and other public figures received hundreds of letters, reflecting the deep range of emotions and opinions about his ruling: from support to fear and bigotry—and every shading in between. This is an example of two:

Letter 1

_The White Race is a Fragile Thing._

_It cannot stand integration._

_The Jews stand together._

_The Blacks stand together._

_The White Race does not._

_You are a case in point._

_I believe in Justice and you are no exception. How do you plead?_

_As far as the Constitution goes you judges and lawyers have made it a joke._

_A judge who runs for office is a judge, but one appointed by either a Governor or a President is nothing but a political flukie._

Letter 2

Commonwealth Ave.
Boston, Ma. 02115
September 12, 1974

The Honorable Judge W. Arthur Garrity, Jr.
U.S. District Court
1525 Post Office Building
Boston, MA

Dear Justice Garrity,

It seems remarkable that a full ten years since the 1964 Civil Rights Act passed before black children in Boston could hope for integrated and equal education. What is equally astonishing is that, except for proper and courageous decision and clarity of purpose, such a miscarriage of constitutional rights would have continued.

As a citizen with a deeply rooted sense that equality under law means equality regardless of race (or sex), I feel indebted to your historic decision.

My only regret is that some citizens in Boston, our fair city, have responded as did Southern Whites in the early '60s at the prospect of integration. My hope is now that equality of education is a realistic goal, the economic and social status of my Black brothers and sisters during the 70's and 80's will become more equal in the North - as it has become in the South.

University of Massachusetts, Boston, Archives and Special Collections
http://www.masshist.org/longroad/02education/morgan.htm