

This brief survey has been put together by the Talented Students in the Sciences Research Project at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. This investigation is funded by the National Science Foundation and is interested in learning more about the academic and social experiences of talented students in the sciences at the undergraduate and graduate levels. We are contacting individuals who were identified as having an interest in the sciences, as indicated by past inquiry into the Meyerhoff Scholarship Program at UMBC. We would appreciate your assistance by completing the information below. Please send back by email to Shauna Pollard at spollard@umbc.edu or by regular mail to:

Dr. Ken Maton

Department of Psychology

University of Maryland, Baltimore County

1000 Hilltop Circle

Baltimore, MD 21250

Please read to the end for information about financial incentives for your participation.

We offer $30 for your assistance.

Additional Information about the project:

- Every student who applies to the Meyerhoff Program signs a consent form allowing the project researchers to track their academic success and experiences, regardless of whether or not they attend UMBC. You were selected because you signed this form at the time of your application to the Meyerhoff Scholars Program.
- The project is directed by Dr. Kenneth Maton, a psychology professor at UMBC and Dr. Freeman Hrabowski, President of UMBC. Any questions or concerns can be directed to Shauna Pollard, the project manager, at spollard@umbc.edu, or (410) 455-3110 who will share them with Dr. Maton.

Thank you for agreeing to help us!
