The ticks that carry Lyme disease within the United States are mainly found within the temperate regions. Since the CDC began its surveillance of the disease in 1982, more than 150,000 cases have been reported in the United States alone. Lyme Disease can be quite debilitating, and because of its wide range of symptoms, difficult to diagnose.