This map combines the origins of malaria (stars), the present extent of malaria (red areas) and the projected extent of malaria (black areas). This map illustrates significant regions of the world affected by this disease and the prospect for malaria to invade areas not yet affected by the disease. Changes brought about by global warming will in all likelihood bring malaria to all the continents except Antarctica.

Data modified from Hugo Ahlenius, UNEP/Grid-Arendal
http://maps.grida.no/go/graphic/climate_change_and_malaria_scenario_for_2050 Material extracted from the CDC website. For more information see www.cdc.gov/malaria/history/index.htm